

National's Plan for Communications

A vibrant, competitive and modern telecommunications sector is a vital part of what makes our country tick. Good, enforceable, generic competition law is the cornerstone of any telecommunications regime, and it is important that property rights are respected. National will ensure this happens.

NATIONAL WILL:

- Maintain the office of the Telecommunications Commissioner, but ensure his rulings can be challenged by way of appeal.
- Insist that all players co-operate in the immediate implementation of full number portability, and regulate an outcome if necessary.